

THE
URBAN LEAGUE STORY
ON OPPORTUNITIES UNLIMITED

THE

ANNIVERSARY

URBAN LEAGUE OF ESSEX COUNTY
NEWARK, N. J.

Tina E. Bohannon, Radio Chairman

This brochure on the "Opportunities Unlimited" radio program is a profession of the work of the Urban League of Essex County. It has been prepared with the hope that it will present to the public the nature of radio broadcasts that have been made on radio station WENR, depicting the kinds of services that are available in Essex County and the nature of those services.

It is further hoped that this capsule presentation of a sampling of the radio guests will add a new dimension to the Urban League's relationship with the public and that it will also increase the effectiveness of the League's work.

The program content has related to the following:

Education and Youth Incentives

Many of the discussions have dealt with the special problems and needs of education in New Jersey. They have also pointed up the problems of the socially disadvantaged students and how the child's social class influenced his progress in school. Some of these radio interviews were concerned with students in contrasting environments, such as the inner city, the suburbs and the village. Others were talks that outlined the opportunities afforded by the government, industry and private sources for scholarships and loans. The guests represented the New Jersey State Department of Education, City Boards of Education, colleges and secondary schools, as well as other related fields of education.

Health, Welfare and Housing

There is a great and immediate need to find ways and means as well as the necessary motivations to improve the family patterns and living conditions among the non-whites in our community. There is also a need to develop more understanding of, and appreciation for, persons of different ethnic backgrounds in the community. Moreover, there is much to be done to bridge the social distance that exists among the various groups and to develop better human relations. The guests have provided much information dealing with the community and family handicaps that beset and hamper our citizens. They have also discussed what can be done to assist marginal families in taking advantage of the many opportunities offered by the schools, business and industry.

Religious Resources

Since the church has been one of the greatest forces in the life of the non-whites, the discussions have centered on the church's involvement in administering to the needs of the poor. Specifically, they noted the kinds of educational programs that are needed in the church, what position the church has taken with regard to an "inclusive society," the kind of impact the Ecumenical Council in Rome had on the church in general, some of the Self-Help Programs initiated by the church and the relationship between the church and the civil rights movement. The guests also provided much inspiration and guidance on these programs.

Economic Development and Employment

The changed conditions in our society have placed great emphasis upon the manpower shortage in our country. They have also brought into sharp focus the need for marketable skills. The guests have outlined the areas of great need, indicating the opportunities not only for semi-skilled jobs and apprenticeship training, but they have also given information as to where there are training centers and places where job placements and on-the-job training opportunities are available.
